Chiropractic a Fact and Not a Theory

Our Message is Health

Chiropractic was discovered seventeen years ago in an experience with a janitor who had been deaf for more than sixteen years, the deafness having been produced from a subluxation, received by a fall. Chiropractic Adjustments removed the nerve pressure. Nature stepped in and made the man well.

No man living has a perfect spine, the displacement, however slight, of a vertebra, whether to the left or right, causes a pressure on the nerves that lead direct from this joint to some portion of the body and that the peculiar disease, your particular disease, is caused from this pressure on this portion of the nervous system, and when this pressure is fully removed, restoration of the currents flowing through the nerves are restored and you naturally get well.

Hundreds of persons have gotten well by taking Chiropractic adjustments. You'll find any of them ready reference as to the efficiency of Chiropractic.

Ellory and Emory Lee of the town of Saratoga were brought to this city on Saturday and placed in the county jail pending the securing of a bail bond for $200. This was subsequently secured and the men were released.

The matter started in a saloon row at Nekeosa, during the progress of which Norman Wood was stabbed several times by either one or both of the Lees.

Wood is also a resident of Saratoga, and he and the Lees have had trouble before, and when they got together at Gah's saloon in Nekeosa a row started, during the progress of which Wood was cut up quite badly, he having a couple of cuts in the head and one in the side of the neck.

Leach Brown, a man who tried to separate the combatants, was also stabbed during the scrimmage, he also having three cuts in different parts of his anatomy.

It is not thought that either of the two men will die from their wounds, although they were bad enough to be considered serious.

Is Struck by Auto.
 Stevens Point Journal.—Eugene Clemlenning, owner of the general store and considerable other property at Mehan station, and a prominent mason contractor, was the victim of an accident at an early hour Friday morning, which although it terminated seriously, is what might be called a lucky one indeed.

Mr. Clemlenning came to the city last evening on the Green Bay & Western train in search of laborers for a contract he had at Bancroft. He intended to stay over night at the home of his nephew, Fred Dowell, leaving for Bancroft this morning. However, for some unexplainable reason, he wandered out on Patch street and when a short distance east of the old Wood's mill, laid down in the road.

Early this morning, a call was sent to Dr. Swan, the veterinarian, to attend to a horse at the Soo line stock yards that had been injured in transit. The doctor started out with his car, a runabout, accompanied by G. F. Spindler and Louis Hartwig. It was about five thirty when they reached the point in the road where Clemlenning lay, and not until the car was within a few feet of the latter did they catch sight of him. The doctor at once applied the brakes but it was too late and the car passed over him. He was at once placed in the auto and hurried to the south side engine house, where medical assistance was called. Later in the day he was removed to his home at Mehan, where he was taken to his son, Arthur, who came to the city soon after the accident.

An examination of Mr. Clemlenning's wounds failed to disclose any broken bones, although a rib or two on the right side may possibly be cracked. It is also possible that he may have sustained internal injuries, but at this time it was too early to state anything definite in that regard. However, his body is badly bruised and the ligaments on his right side are torn, making that side practically helpless.

Death of John Coulthart.
 John Coulthart, one of the old and respected residents of this section, died at his home in the town of Rudolph on Saturday night, after an illness of some length from the effects of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered over a year ago.

Mr. Coulthart was born at Kingsport, Ontario, on the 19th of November, 1844, and was consequently fifty-eight years at the time of his death. He came to Wood County when a young man and located on a farm in the town of Rudolph about forty years ago, and has since resided there.

He was married in 1871 to Miss Waltha Parkhurst, and to them seven children were born, four of whom survive. They are Walter Coulthart of Manitoba, Mrs. Charles Wassor of the state of Washington, Raymond Coulthart of this city and Miss Edith Coulthart, who lived at home with her father.

The funeral services were held this afternoon from the Methodist church in this city, the services being conducted by the Rev. F. A. Pease of Waukesha, assisted by the Rev. H. C. Logan of this city.

Mr. Coulthart was a man of large acquaintance, and was liked by all who knew him, and had many friends who will truly mourn his loss.

SYNOPSIS.
 Time—The Present
 Commencement Week at Cornell College

Act 3—Drawing room at Howard's residence. Dinner parlous business.

It Was 13 to 0.
 The Oshkosh high school football team came here on Saturday and cleaned up the locals to the tune of 13 to 0. The Oshkosh team averages considerably heavier than our boys, they play like veterans, do good team work, and considering everything, our boys did well to hold them down to the score they did.

Oshkosh made all of their scores in the first quarter of the game, at which time the locals seemed to be unable to put up much of a defense, apparently being a trifle awed by the superior weight and speed of the visitors, but after this the locals seemed to do about as well as the visitors and several times came near scoring on them.

A heavy wind swept the length of the field, which made many of the plays rather uncertain, and many of the times when a forward pass was attempted the ball landed anywhere but the right place.

It was a well contested game and the locals put up a game fight and are to be congratulated, even if they did not win.

Parcels Post Stamps.

The third series will represent our industrial zones, showing the principal sources of products that will be transported most extensively by the parcels post.

Indians Were Beaten.
 The football game on Sunday between the city team and the Carlisle Indians resulted in a victory for the city team by a score of 14 to 0. The Indians put up a game fight, but were a trifle outclassed by the home boys, who played a speedy game. A good sized crowd turned out to see the contest and they were well pleased with the game.

Theodore Roosevelt Shot.

Theodore Roosevelt was shot in Milwaukee on Monday evening while in the act of entering an automobile in the act of entering the auditorium where he was going to make a speech.

The wound was reported to be not a serious one, the bullet striking Mr. Roosevelt in the right side and imbedded itself in the fleshy part of the body under the right arm. According to the newspaper reports the colonel continued on his way to the auditorium and made his speech without having the bullet removed.

The man who did the shooting was captured before he could make his escape, but he refused to give his name for some time merely making the statement that "any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

It was afterward discovered that the man's name was Louis Schrank, and that his home is in New York City.

After the colonel had made his speech at the auditorium he was taken to the hospital where an operation was performed with the idea of removing the bullet from his body.

Later—Later reports from Milwaukee as to the effect that an operation was not performed on Col. Roosevelt for the removal of the bullet. X-ray photographs having revealed the fact that no vital spot had been touched. The wound is not considered a serious one and it will not inconvenience Mr. Roosevelt much with the exception that he will have to remain quiet for a week or ten days.

Killed at Dexterville.
 Geraldine Hoover, the six year old daughter of Allen Hoover, who lives near Dexterville, was fatally injured by a Green Bay & Western passenger train at about 4 o'clock last Friday afternoon. It was the habit of the children to cross the Yellow river railroad bridge when returning home from school. When on time the train passes over this bridge before school is out. Last Friday the train was late, a fact of which the children were not aware. The little girl, who was only six years old, and her brother, aged eight, were crossing the bridge when the train came along. The boy was ahead and crossed safely, but the little girl was struck by the locomotive, her body being thrown on the cowcatcher. The train was stopped and the girl was placed in the baggage car.

In the meantime the mother had been notified of the accident and she came to this city also to be with the little one, but the child died before help could be secured.

Theodore Roosevelt Shot.
 Theodore Roosevelt was shot in Milwaukee on Monday evening while in the act of entering an automobile to be taken to make a speech.

The wound was reported to be not a serious one, the bullet striking Mr. Roosevelt in the right side and embedded itself in the fleshy part of the body under the right arm. According to the newspaper reports the colonel continued on his way to the auditorium and made his speech without having the bullet removed.

The man who did the shooting was captured before he could make his escape, but he refused to give his name for some time merely making the statement that "any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

It was afterward discovered that the man's name was Louis Schrank, and that his home is in New York City.

After the colonel had made his speech at the auditorium he was taken to the hospital where an operation was performed with the idea of removing the bullet from his body.

Later—Later reports from Milwaukee are to the effect that an operation for the removal of the bullet, X-ray photographs having revealed the fact that no vital spot had been touched. The wound is not considered a serious one and it will not inconvenience Mr. Roosevelt much with the exception that he will have to remain quiet for a week or ten days.

Is Struck by Auto.
 Stevens Point Journal—Engene Clemmeling, owner of the general store and considerable other property at Meeshan station, and a prominent mason contractor, was the victim of an accident at an early hour Friday morning, which although it terminated seriously, is what might be called a lucky one indeed.

Mr. Clemmeling came to the city last evening on the Green Bay & Western train in search of laborers for a contract he had at Bancroft. He intended to stay over night at the home of his nephew, Fred Jewett, leaving for Bancroft this morning. However, for some unexplainable reason, he wandered out on Patch street and when a short distance east of the old Wood's mill, laid down in the road.

Early this morning, a call was sent to Dr. Swan, the veterinarian, to attend to a horse at the Sae line stock yards that had been injured in transit. The doctor started out with his car, a runabout, accompanied by G. F. Spindler and Louis Hartwig. It was about five thirty when they neared the point in the road where Clemmeling lay, and not until the car was within a few feet of him did they catch sight of him. The doctor at once applied the brakes but it was too late and the car passed over him. He was at once placed in the auto and hurried to the south side cogline house, where medical assistance was called. Later in the day he was removed to the Bruce hotel, and will be taken to his home at Meeshan this evening by his son, Arthur, who came to the city soon after the accident.

An examination of Mr. Clemmeling's wounds failed to disclose any thing serious, although a rib or two on the right side may possibly be cracked. It is also possible that he may have sustained internal injuries, but at this time it was too early to state anything definite in that regard. However, his body is badly bruised and the ligaments on his right side are torn, making that side practically helpless.

Death of John Coulthart.
 John Coulthart, one of the old and respected residents of this section, died at his home in the town of Randolph on Saturday night, after an illness of some length from the effects of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered over a year ago.

He came to Wood County when a young man and located on a farm in the town of Randolph about forty years ago, and has since resided there. He was married in 1871 to Miss Walthia Parkhurst, and to them seven children were born, four of whom survive. They are Walter Coulthart of Manitowish, Mrs. Charles Wassor of the state of Washington, Raymond Coulthart of this city and Miss Ruth Coulthart, who lived at home with her father.

The funeral service occurs this afternoon from the Methodist church in this city, the services being conducted by the Rev. F. A. Pease of Waukesha, assisted by the Rev. H. C. Logan of this city.

Killed at Dexterville.
 Gertrude Hoover, the six year old daughter of Allen Hoover, who lives near Dexterville, was fatally injured by a Green Bay & Western passenger train at about 4 o'clock last Friday afternoon. It was the habit of the children to cross the Yellow River railroad bridge when returning home from school. When on this bridge the train was passing over it. The train was late, a fact of which the children were not aware. The little girl, who was only six years old, and her brother, aged eight, were crossing the bridge when the train came along. The boys went ahead and crossed safely, but the little girl was struck by the locomotive, her body being thrown on the cowcatcher. The train was stopped and the girl was placed in the baggage car.

In the meantime the mother had been notified of the accident and she came to this city also to be with the little one, but the child died before help could be secured.

Chiropractic a Fact and Not a Theory

Our Message is Health

Chiropractic was discovered seventeen years ago in an experience with a janitor who had been deaf for more than sixteen years, the deafness having been produced from a subluxation, received by a fall. Chiropractic Adjustments removed the nerve pressure, Nature stepped in and made the man well.

No man living has a perfect spine, the displacement, however slight, of a vertebra, whether to the left or right, causes a pressure on the nerves that lead direct from this joint to some portion of the body and that the peculiar disease, your particular disease, is caused from this pressure on this portion of the nervous system, and when this pressure is fully removed, restoration of the currents flowing through the nerves are restored and you naturally get well.

Hundreds of persons have gotten well by taking Chiropractic adjustments. You'll find any of them ready reference as to the efficiency of Chiropractic.

Wood County Politics.

Pittsville Record.—The present situation in Wood County is a dire threatening of a break in the solid republican front held for years and considered a safe bet at any time.

Never was there a time when the republicans have presented ranks as homogenous as this fall. The republican press too, is resolute. Many of the feeling of both press and people is born and bred in the foothills principal (or lack of principal) of Gov. McGovern in quelling the party that gave him nomination to flock with the detestable third termism. Some people are wont to call a party. It has even gone so far that there is a general call throughout the state that Gov. McGovern resign as candidate on the republican ticket. There is no possibility of his having a chance of success. It is no longer a question, as in years previous, of how many democrats will get on the ticket, this fall. Democrats concede nothing. Republicans do concede, and conservative republicans go as far as concede the democrats all but from one to three places on the ticket.

Better Defeat Him.

(Merill Herald Republican)

In a carefully prepared interview given to the press the other day, President Taft is quoted saying:

"There is no danger, I believe, to our institutions from industrial agitation. So long as the labor movement keeps within the legal bounds, it is not without wholesome significance, and may tend to improve conditions. When it passes beyond the legal limit, it is a menace to be dealt with by lawful authority."

If the above means anything, it means that President Taft would suppress industrial agitation. That is, he would curb the agitation for shorter hours for workers, minimum compensation for women having and all kinds of dissensions having for their objects the betterment of industrial conditions for working men and women. Let a man like Taft, who has never shown any sympathy with the working people, be the judge of when "industrial agitation" passes beyond the legal limit, free speech so far as the working men and their unions are concerned, would be found "a menace to be dealt with by lawful authority."

Working men, you can engage in no holler service between now and election day, than to use your best efforts to defeat President Taft. He is the most dangerous man, so far as your interest is concerned, that has ever held high office in his country.

Where Are You At?

E. E. Brown, candidate for congress under the republican ticket:

Are you for McGovern and Roosevelt, or against Robert M. La Follette, or are you for Taft?

The voters want to know, and in justice to them please make a statement.

A. J. Plowman, the democratic candidate, says he stands with Woodrow Wilson; now let us know who you stand for.

Neenah Republican.—McGovern deserted La Follette at the Chicago convention and now by his own accord has deserted the republican party to support the Bull Moose movement.

No self respecting republican can well vote for McGovern under the circumstances. A general cleanup is necessary, and the only way to accomplish the feat is by placing Karel in the office by an overwhelming majority.

At this season of the year when farmers are hauling their crops to market, it is a good time to reflect on the advantages of good roads, and to figure out how much time and money you have by poor ones. That not less than $100 million dollars would be saved to the country in the cost of hauling the present record breaking crops if 20 per cent of the public highways of the country were improved, is the assertion of J. J. Pannacker, Jr., executive secretary of the American Road Congress. Mr. Pannacker, before becoming the secretary of the American Association for Highway Improvement, was the chief of the road management department in the United States office of public roads and has made a comparative study of the cost of hauling crops over good and bad roads.

PITTSVILLE

(From the Record.)

A crew for the Wisconsin Telephone Co. is on the line between Pittsville and Grand Rapids looking for a break in the line that has been the cause for a week and also mending the line generally. Lightning did considerable damage to poles between here and Sunaun Corners the past few weeks and some and cross arms are being replaced.

Geo. Brown has received notice from Soudia, Washington, that his sons, Mit and Will entered in a fire at that place last month when half of the town was wiped out. The boys estimate their loss at about $2,000. The greater share of this loss was business home and contents whereas they had been running a confectionery store.

Mrs. John Hoffer died Friday morning last, October 14th, of nephritis, after an illness of but four days. The funeral services were held at the German Lutheran church Monday at 2 p. m., Rev. Wahl officiating.

The laborer took place in the city cemetery.

Minor Minor and Miss Dolly Phillips were married at the Congregational parsonage by Rev. Vater Saturday afternoon of last week. The young couple will live at the bluff where the young man is engaged in farming.

VESPER

(From the State Center.)

Another chapter of the Vesper Safety Clevis & Malleable Iron Co. is about to be pulled off about the 18th day of November when the foundry will be sold on foreclosure to satisfy a second mortgage. The sale would have to be made subject to the first mortgage, so the holder of the second mortgage could not get anything unless it sold for more than the first mortgage. This proceeding is an outgrowth of the labor claims of the foundry pay the labor claims, its proceeds to the stockholders. As soon as the foreclosure is completed, the stockholders will be assessed for the labor claims.

Earl Staven and Miss Ella Kiesinger were joined in marriage at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. Gieselman Wednesday. They will make their home in Vesper in the Dave Woodruff building. The groom is the engineer for the Vesper Wood Mfg. Co. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Eislerger of the town of Sigel. The many friends of this popular young couple will join with us in extending the heartiest congratulations to them for a happy journey through life.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Adams welcomed the arrival of twins at their home Friday, a boy and a girl. Congratulations.

Twins, a boy and girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. John Finup Monday evening. They have the sympathy of the community in the loss of the little girl Wednesday morning.

Warner Vanetta of Arpin sustained a broken collar bone as the result of his team running away Monday. He was hauling rock for H. P. Roehrig & Co., when the accident occurred.

Agent M. A. Prentiss informs us that the Soo line will build stock yards here this fall. They will be located just this side of the Northwestern right-of-way on the lumber yard switch.

NEKOOSA

(From the Times)

On Friday, October 4, the little daughter, Lizzie, aged two and half years, of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joslin, died at the family home after an illness of only seven days, from a disease of pneumonia and summer complaints. Funeral services were held Monday morning from the Catholic church, conducted by the priest, Rev. Father Feldman; interment was made in the Nekooosa Catholic cemetery.

A most destructive fire occurred Monday, just after the dinner hour. The handsome, convenient and comfortable two story frame residence of John Simmet, just outside the village limits, southwest, on the Woods Farm road, was totally destroyed, together with the entire contents, even the family clothing being burned.

How the fire originated will remain a mystery.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hansen and children, Bernard and Ruth, of Grand Rapids visited at the John Potanski home Sunday.

RUDOLPH

This community was gripped upon hearing the news of the accidental death of little Gertrude Hoover.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alie Hoover of Des Moines, which occurred at that place Friday afternoon. She was returning home from school with an older brother, Alfred aged 8 and they were going across the G. B. & W. railroad bridge when they heard the approach of the afternoon passenger train and Alfred realized their danger manifested great presence of mind to do all in his power to aid his little sister to a place of safety which he succeeded in doing at the end of the bridge but it appears the train was going at such a rapid speed and it caused such a fright that she was drawn to the engine and struck at the base of the brain by one of the drive wheels and was thrown several feet below to the lower pier of the bridge. The train was stopped as soon as possible and little Gertrude picked up and found that life was not yet extinct. By this time her parents were hurried to the scene and all were put on board the train and hurried to Grand Rapids where medical aid had been summoned to await their arrival but all in vain for Gertrude had passed away to the home beyond where her Master was waiting to greet her. Gertrude was six years of age upon her last birthday and was an exceptionally bright child for one of her age and seemed to be loved by all. Her angelic presence will be greatly missed from the household. "They will be none" wish her back. "They will be none" and not "our" will. The parents have five children two boys and three girls to console them in their sad affliction. Mrs. Hoover was formerly Miss Orilla Ostrom, daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. S. Ostrom of this place and has many friends and relatives here. The funeral was held from the home of the grandmother, Mrs. Ostrom, Monday at two o'clock p. m. and was largely attended. Those who attended the funeral from out of town were Mrs. Paul Raefield of Milwaukee, a friend of the family and Mr. Hoover of North Okauchon, a brother of Mr. Hoover's.

Owen was not sufficiently advertised, or else the people generally do not care to listen to political speeches.

The Story of "The House of a Thousand Candles."

A tale of love and mystery enacted in the shadow of a great mansion of mystery on the shores of an Indian lake. From this house old John Glenarm secretly departs, leaving the impression that he is dead, that he may the better learn what sort of men are Pickering, the executor of the estate, and John Glenarm, his grandson and possible heir and, if the thing be possible, to bring about a marriage between the young man and Marian Devereux, the alternate heir.

He confides his plan to Bates, the butler, the serving man, who is "too good a servant to be one," and pledges Bates to secrecy. Things might have gone smoothly enough had it not been that old Glenarm left behind him a strange and unusual will with clauses and provisions therein as whimsical as the old man's fancy, and, as executor of it, a certain Pickering. Upon the testament turns the story, Pickering and Glenarm both concede that a hidden treasure lies concealed in some mysterious passage of the mysterious mansion, and both institute search. Glenarm, however, falls in love with Marian, and asks her to be his wife. Though he has been led to believe that Marian is not Marian, but Gladys Armstrong, he has, nevertheless, violated by his proposal, an important provision of the will, and the estate, accordingly, by the terms of the will, reverts to the girl.

This in itself would make small differences—the fortune would be in the family in any event, as it were—but, unfortunately, Pickering does not give up so easily. He, with the assistance of coincidences and circumstances, convinces Glenarm that Marian has willfully deceived him that she might obtain the hidden treasure and the House of a Thousand Candles and bestow them, with her hand, upon the villain himself and not upon the impetuous and impulsive young man who has dropped so suddenly into the Glenarm preserve.

this summer rummy was as unknown here as love in a wolf den but now it is as common as 50 centos. You don't have to be an expert or a high brow to play the game. The only thing you want to look out for is to be on easy street when mounting season begins. To be caught with a handful of cards when some rummy tramples, is punishable at so much per counted spots which will materially offset your chip pile and eventually break your bank. Some men play rummy with their wives half a cent a point. If the husband loses he pays with coin of the realm but if the woman loses she pays in conversation money, so you see an indulgent papa has got to be an 18 karat rummy before he sets in. Any person past the age of chicken pox and not over a hundred years old is eligible to play the game.—Marshfield Herald.

The Story of "The House of a Thousand Candles."

A tale of love and mystery enacted in the shadow of a great mansion of mystery on the shores of an Indiana lake. From this house an Indiana woman secretly departs, leaving the impression that he is dead, that he may be the better learn what sort of men are Pickering, the executor of the estate, and John Glenarm, his grandson and possible heir and, if the thing be possible, to bring about a marriage between the young man and Marian Devereux, the alternate heir.

He confides his plan to Bates, the butler, the serving man, who is "too good a servant to be one," and good Bates to secure. Things might have gone smoothly enough had it not been that old Glenarm left behind him a strange and unusual will with clauses and provisions therein as whimsical as the old man's fancy, and, as executor of it, a certain Pickering, an executor of the estate, both conclude that a hidden treasure lies concealed in some mysterious passage of the mysterious mansion, and both institute search. Glenarm, however, falls in love with Marian and asks her to be his wife. Through he has been led to believe that Marian is not Marian, but Gladys Armstrong, he has, nevertheless, violated by his proposal, an important provision of the will, and the estate, accordingly, by the terms of the will, reverts to the girl.

This in itself would make small difference—the fortune would be in the family in any event, as it were—but, unfortunately, Pickering does not give up so easily. He, with the assistance of coincidences and circumstances, convinces Glenarm that Marian has willfully deceived him that she might obtain the hidden treasure and the House of a Thousand Candles and bestow them, with her hand, upon the villain himself and hand upon the impetuous and impulsive young man who has dropped so suddenly into the Glenarm preserve.

But young Glenarm refuses to vacate the promises. He is convinced that Pickering has some ulterior motive in desiring immediate possession of the estate—which he has—and he defies Pickering's hired assassin, Morgan, and, with his friend, Donovan and Bates the butler, the man of mystery, barricades the doors and prepares for a siege. Into the midst of these belated preparations comes Marian, through a secret corridor, to warn Glenarm of his peril. Pickering suspects her mission and follows and, unhappily for him, brings up short in the enemy's camp. Morgan attacks with a mob, and a wild bullet, thudding against a panel, betrays by its sound the hiding place of old Glenarm's treasure. Glenarm and his friend make a hasty examination and they find that Pickering has borrowed $300,000 from the senior Glenarm and given his notes therefor. These are due and Pickering cannot pay—hence his desperate efforts to gain possession of them.

While the battle is at its height, Marian appears in the library where the battle rages through another secret panel, bearing a message from the elder Glenarm in answer to a telegram sent by Bates. The surprise is complete and the effect on besieged and besiegers alike astounding. The attack comes to an end. Pickering is made prisoner while Morgan escapes during the excitement and in the explanation that follows it develops that Bates is not Bates, but a man by the name of Orlington who, to shield the father of Marian from the penalty of a felony, assumed the crime himself. He fled to America and, answering an advertisement, found himself in the employ of the eccentric architect of "The House of a Thousand Candles" and within a stone's throw of the school where Marian herself resides. Bates remained, not only because he had concealed as an object and a motive, but because he also fell in love with Marian. But to Glenarm love was a better man because she loves him. But Bates is a man of good character.

The above attraction will appear at Daly's Theatre on Thursday, Oct. 17th. All this special and trick scenery is carried by this company and the production will be complete in every detail. Advertisement.

Trumet "a" was a fog blown in during the night. So wet and heavy that it was almost impossible to breathe. One might taste the salt in it. So thick that houses along the main roads were but dim shapes behind the gray drapery, and only the gates and the device of the front yards plainly in evidence to the passers-by. The beach-dunes and hayricks busied on the dunes were spangled with beady droplets. The pole on Cannon Hill, where the beacon was hoisted when the harbor from Boston dropped anchor, was a gray, was shiny and slippery. A weathered whaler, the new name of the "Kermela" by Captain Zebrulka Mayo, retired whaler, sawed in a sea of cloud. The Hibernian came in the little "Come-Outer" chapter, dripped at sadate intervals, the blanch fustled in the bow of Captain's lady leading to the bow of the Hibernian fustled in the bow of the ungodly puddles in his hollow. And, through the damp stillness, the muttered growl of the surf, three miles away at the foot of the sand-

She was taking up the vest. Mr. Horne, Captain Eben Hamward, who had called to see if it was anything she might do to was removing towels, tubcloths, the like from the drawers in the "high-boy," folding them and putting them in an aid at the foot of the bed. He had been discussing the pest which all Trumet had also for three weeks, namely, the "C" to the pastorate of the "New Church of the Rev. If Reverend John was expected most any coach. In those days of the late fifties, the ride down the Cape extended only as Sandwich; passengers must rest of their journey at that place, and direct from the city packet, the little schooner, by Ellery had written that he probably come on the coach.

Other Women in the House Have Small Chance of Receiving Bunches That Are Sent Home.

An uptown woman who nearly got stalled in a Ninth street car with a bundle of merchandise gave this reason for carrying home her own parcels, according to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"I was connecting a hide in my boarding-house," she said, "everything in the dry-goods lot to the null of the woman I married. Other women who misfortune to live in the same shop under difficulties. They can insure the eject their own purchases is to home."

WHY THE FIFTH MAN LEFT

He Wore a Wig and the Other Four Men at the Table Were Bald —and Talkative.

In the smoking room of a west-housed coach five men sat at a table. The first man sat at the "small end" of the table. When the coach had been cashed in the men retained their places, and presently one of the party said: "This is funny; four men are bald, and I am the only one with hair. Why is it?"

"And then there was a discussion as to the cause of baldness, in which all took part except the unaffected man, who was a good listener for a while. He then told the others good night. When he had gone the youngest of the group, who was less bald than the others, said: "Do you know why Mr. Blank made the getaway?"

He wears a wig, and is probably a bald as any of us." And for the rest of the journey Mr. Blank's head was the object of study—at a distance—for he never again appeared in the smoking room.

"Mammy" looked at him and said:
"Would you like to go away with

"Mammy" was sure she would.
"Suppose I get just a bungalow. Do you think you could take care of it

Vegetable Fiber for Shoes.
A Haverhill (Mass.) shoemaker has obtained patents giving him the right to make shoes of vegetable fiber. The fiber which he has invented and perfected to be used in the manufacture of shoes. A few cases of shoes have been made of this material, which appears to be a good substitute for leathadaptable for warm weather wear because of its softness and pliability.

The inventor also claims that a shoe made of this material is waterproof.

Joke on His Clerical Brother.
Two clergymen, named Chalmers, one a minister and the other a physician, lived together in a western town. One day a man called at the house and asked for Mr. Chalmers. The physi-

"I am he."

"You've changed considerably since I last heard you preach," said the man, who appeared greatly astonished.

"Oh, it's my brother you want to see; he preaches and I practice."

SPARKS FAMILY HAPPENINGS

THE KID EATS PAINTER'S P.E.
BY EDWARD B. CLARK

It be a case of false pretense if we keep her?"

"Yes, by a jugful. I'll send Mrs.
Smithkins the price of her advertisement in an anonymous letter. To have and to hold is a good motto in a case like this."

That girl Rose, who stumbled into the Sparks' flat that morning night, was a dream. She cooked things to eat, she was willing; she didn't have a cross word in her vocabulary; she didn't care to go to balls on Saturday night, and she was plump and good-looking. The Sparks' family life was ideal.

One morning as Mr. Sparks was leaving the building to go to the office he met the janitor, who was coming up from the basement leading a child by the hand. Mr. Sparks had been with each hand. Mr. Sparks had been noticed the janitor before. This morning something in the man's bearing and crying hysterically. A grin appeared on Mr. Sparks' face. The doctor and the druggist looked distasteful. Mr. Sparks gave the getting a square meal."

"Well," answered Henry as he carried Tommy and his surroundings.
"I think from the cleaning lady just professional gentlemen have just giving that if we could turn him into a side out he'd make a good advertisement for some brand of soap."

The Sparks' Old Soldier Janitor.
"Eliza," said Mr. Sparks, on the night of the day that they moved into the new flat, "this apartment life is worse than one of Dante's circles. I'll make just one more move before I die, and that will be into a house in a suburb. Here we are just moved from the corner of the street, and everything tippy-tippy and no girl. Or the latest acquisition from the corner bureau had to leave us just to throw all the burden of the packing up and the unpacking on us.
Then again the janitors of all flats are devils. I'll bet the one in this building will prove to be worse than any of the others, and even a man accustomed to using strong language can't say anything stronger than that. Just look at this muss, will you, and no one to help us fix up."

Just then the front doorbell rang.

"Yes, out of the hall; painter's pie's good," answered Tommy.
Mrs. Sparks shrieked. The maid rushed in from the kitchen. "Get the doctor! The druggist! Mr. Sparks!" Mrs. Sparks, "Tommy's eating paint and sugar of lead and everything. Go, girl, go." Susan rushed down the stairs, and the doctor and druggist flying up to the house, or druggist, the clerk at the telephone Mr.
Sparks then sat out on a chase for
the doctor.

In the meantime Mrs. Sparks was moaning over Tommy, who was taking the unusual condition which he had created as a child. He would not four-year-olds. He insisted on occasionally uttering that "painter's pie was good," and at each repetition the mother's heart sank.

The druggist rushed in. "Tommy has eaten paint. Heaven alone knows how much. It must be his sweet and that's why he ate it."

The druggist grabbed up Tommy, half threw him into a lounge, and then turned to the mother. "Continue to feed him. Mrs. Sparks, life depends on yourself. Has me salt, poultice instant action."

At this point, Mrs. Sparks, who had all three articles in the house, and she rushed off to the kitchen and brought them back. Tommy as yet showed no sign of collapse. The druggist put two tablespoons of salt in a glass of lukewarm water and let Tommy swallow it sputtering.

This dose was followed up with a heroic one of potash, and then Tommy was made to swallow a large cupful of soft soap. "Continue to feed him," said the doctor. "The soap down and the sugar of lead and everything. Go, girl, go." Susan rushed down the stairs, and the doctor and
druggist flying up to the house, or
druggist, the clerk at the telephone Mr.
Sparks then sat out on a chase for
the doctor.

"The only thing about Tommy that didn't rebel at this treatment was his stomach. That helped into its uncontrollable lead with a pertinacity worthwhile of something better. At this juncture the painter appeared on the scene. He admitted to the fearful Mrs. Sparks that he had left his paint pot in the room, and that he had been found around there for about five minutes while he went round the corner to get a glass of beer."

At this instant the doctor fell in at the door on the heels of the maid.
He approved the druggist's treatment and added to it a large dose of ipecac.
Under this last added horror Tommy's stomach and spirit both gave way.
Like the younger hopeful in Helen's Babies, he played whale, and while he didn't cast up Jonah he cast up pretty near everything else.

While Tommy lay in the throes Mr.
Sparks arrived, ash-tipped and shaking. The doctor turned to him. "Mr.
Sparks, that if we can keep him at it for ten minutes more we may save his life." Tommy kept it.
The painter, who had retreated behind the studio's countenance of Mrs.
Sparks, now reappeared. He was carrying in one hand a dinner pail, which he held upside down to show those assembled that it was absolutely empty.

"When I came to work this morning," the painter said, "I had three pieces of berry pie in this pail. I didn't eat any now, a fact I just discovered. I guess maybe the youngster knows where it went."

"Henry," said Mrs. Sparks, "won't you go and get that pie?"

"I'm not afraid to work," said the girl.

At this answer, Henry Sparks, who stood in a corner, almost faint. The girl produced a letter from a Lutheran clergyman in a little country village. It happened that Henry Sparks knew the man. She declared she was ready to go to work then and there and would have her things sent right

During the whole conversation Mrs.

finished to stay Mrs. Sparks said:
"How did you happen to know we

"I saw your advertisement," was the answer. "Here it is," and the girl produced a copy of the morning paper. Mrs. Sparks took it. "Mercy," she exclaimed, "that's the advertisement of Mrs. Smithkins, who lives in the flat underneath this. You came to the wrong apartment."

"Well, I like the looks of this place anyway," said Mrs. Sparks, "won't you go and get that pie?"

girl.

IN A HURRY TO THE END

Women of today—and are men to be wondered from the rule?—stay young until beyond the middle life; they live in a hurry to the end; then, when the time of breakdown comes, it comes all at once.

The old-fashioned old lady departed before the age of the turbine engine, the wireless telegraph and the aero-plane. The memory of her brings the suggestion of quiet and repose, like the delightful atmosphere of some of the old houses of the grandfathers.

Now no woman is more than thirty-five—but we don't believe that woman's clubs had as nearly as much to do with that as the changed spirit of the times, which makes it necessary for the woman of today to frequent the "steady monotony" of home life. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

educated and successful in affairs. He was in the eyes of his family, one fault—he had a masculine sense of humor of a homely, almost rural type, at which his family was unreasonably trollably. His days of his marriage, he had been wont to implore her Theodore when they were expecting company, not to be funny."

"Certain jokes or mannerisms of his at the table were of daily occurrence. He noticed many more when they were alone, they sprang into startling prominence when there were guests. He always said, 'People come from miles around to hear us drink the toast of the house,' or if Ellen, the waitress, could spare him another waiver."

TRAVEL IN THE EAST

The "Gamming" Country of Famed Old Ceylon.

Native Superstitious in Evidence Everywhere—Three Small Votive Lamps Always Kept Burning by the Devout Natives.

Ceylon.—I wanted to see the "gam-ming" country, and journeyed by train to Avissawella, whence I drove by coach the twenty-two miles to Ratnapura; it was late in the afternoon when at last I reached Ratnapura resthouse, and Adam's Peak itself appeared over the jungle, gleaming under warm, rosy clouds that seemed to be playing a game of "touch mountain" as they passed from one pinnacle to another.
The rest house is pitched high up on the hillside, and in front of it the broad Kela Ganga river gleamed that night under the stars, and the mysterious gleam of the forest brooded behind a curtain of winding dingles.

Less than half-way to the rest house the river, an English syndicate is working a plumbago mine with first-class machinery and expert engineers.
I stopped to visit this mine, and in its dark levels, blasted out of the massive rock in the bowels of the earth, saw the plumbago being backed out in lumps. Near the top of the shaft, in a small wooden box, three little votive lamps are always kept burning for light for God, one for the company and one for the miners.

During the second day of the river journey came the shooting of some rather gentle rapids, where brown rocks thrust their noses out of the water, and we rushed down splashing on a slide to lower level. At last, some

Mr. Sparks was horrified. He went back to days when as a "non-com" he had vaguely lashed some blucroft duty devil.

"William," he said in a voice of thunder, "how dare you! You're a scoundrel, sir!"

"William's hand went to his forehead in a salute. "Rosa and I are to be married next week, Mr. Sparks," he said.

"Married!" was the gasping response. "How about your wife and two children down stairs?"

"That's my widowed sister and her two little ones. She's been keeping house for me," said William.

Mr. Sparks groaned and went lumpy back into the front room. He waked his wife. "Eliza," he said, "our dream is over. Rosa is going to marry the soldier. It won't hurt him, but it will wound me. I'll hunt him in the morning to look for a home for us in the country," and, sighing, Mr. Sparks went to bed.

At the breakfast table next morning William and Rosa came in hand in hand. "We're going to be married next week, Mr. Sparks," said Rosa.
"but my sister wants a place and I'll send her here. She's a better cook than I am."

At this bit of information Mr.
Sparks' face cleared visibly. "You blessing," he said. "I'll be glad to have you and your sister Rosa, and if William will, I'll get old Highbrooks, the landlord, to send a good janitor in his place, but I'll take good care that he is not an old soldier. And then, forgetful of the old soldier, Mr. Sparks turned to his wife and said:
"They can't resist an old soldier, can they, my dear?"

Danger in "Shuttle Kissing." "Shuttle kissing," as a vehicle for the transmission of diseases from one person to another employed in English weaving sheds, is the subject of a recent report which has been issued as a parliamentary paper. The "kissing" referred to takes place through an operator puts the thread through an eye in the shuttle. This is done by placing the shuttle in the mouth and sucking the thread through the little opening. The report says that while the investigation has shown the prevent method to be uncleanly, and that even a possible means of spreading infectious disease, the committee does not think the time is yet ripe for insisting either by act of parliament or by regulations on the abolition of the existing form of shuttle.

The street committee reported on the petition for the extension of Brown Street to the Sigel road stating that the extension could not be made, except at a large cost, or by condemnation proceedings as it will go through improved property and the owners of these properties do not want the street and say that they will not sell.

On motion the report was adopted. The street committee reported on the petition for the extension of 15th Avenue north from the G. B. & W. Ry. north along the east line of Sec. 12 to the corner of 13th and Sec. 12, and across the section line between Sec. 12 and Sec. 13 to the west line of the city and recommending that the road be laid out and the owners of land and property along the road be notified for land without cost.

On motion the petition was laid on the table. The committee to whom was referred the petition of D. D. Conway relative to the north and south ditch along the Sigel road reported that it is a ditch for the purpose of protecting the highway only it is ample for that purpose, the Sigel road as far north as the city limits is in excellent condition and the high water of the past summer has not affected it in the least.

The east and west ditch, east of the Sigel road, appears to be ample to take care of the water. The ditch, however, is not underlain by a ditch, and something should be done to protect the road running along the north side of the ditch.

On motion the report was accepted and referred to the city engineer to report at the next regular meeting of the council as to the cost of a concrete sewer from the Sigel road to the river.

The water works committee reported on the petition for water main on Grand Avenue, recommending that the petition be laid over until 1913.

On motion the report was adopted and the petition laid over.

City Attorney Hambrecht reported on the petition for taxes on lots 11 and 12, block 1, Gardner's addition stating that he found upon examination that the present owners of said lots appear to be J. S. Boles and R. S. Payne, who said owners paid taxes thereon to the amount of $5.10 for the year 1911, and that said lots were also assessed to Rachel Gardner on her tax receipt for the year 1911 and that she also paid taxes thereon in bulk with other property, and that she is entitled to a refund of the proportionate amount of this tax to wit, the sum of $9.10.

On motion by unanimous vote the clerk calling for the roll claim of Mrs. Rachel Gardner for $9.10 was allowed and the same ordered paid.

On motion the action of the council at its last meeting on the petition of A. P. Nintz was reconsidered.

Moved and seconded that the petition of A. P. Nintz be granted. Motion carried.
